

ALTOGETHER TOO MUCH EXTRA DRY

Annual Functions Prevent the Governors from Doing Work.

WANT DESERT PLACE

Lebanon, Ky., Dec. 1.—Unless plans are suddenly changed some of the governors attending the third annual conference here will leave with carefully prepared discourses on intricate subjects, tucked away for future reference. The social feature of the conference has been paramount and has taken so much time that little business has been transacted.

The conference may adjourn tonight, but unless the different parts of the program are carried out more rapidly than has been so far many important subjects will not be discussed. Even though the conference lasts until Saturday, as first planned, it is probable the program would not be carried out so rapidly as social functions arranged before and after sessions, and in some instances sandwiched in between.

Would Like to Organize.

Many of the governors would like to perfect organizations with officers and give the body a name. As this has been discussed the "house of governors" has been frequently mentioned as the proper name, although the name was placed on that name for this session, at least, by the host, Governor Wilson. At a dinner one of the governors said that if more sessions were held in Kentucky they had better call it the "house of nine course dinners." The argument has become social requirements that at the executive session last night the governors brought their wives and daughters all dressed for a formal reception. The ladies waited in the parlors of the hotel while the governors discussed issues of the day for an hour or more behind closed doors.

Discuss Hadley's Paper.

At the session this morning discussion of Governor Hadley's address of yesterday was taken up. He spoke on "employers' liability and workers' compensation," a subject of great interest to the governors and on which several of them wanted to hear. Various ideas were given, but each was to the effect that our laws on these subjects were inadequate and that the subjects should be carefully revised. Though not a member of the conference one of the visitors at this meeting in Gamaliel Bradford, of Boston, who was accorded the honor of addressing the body even though it was pressed for time. Naturally the governors liked his speech advocating more power for the chief executive and curbing of legislatures.

New Jersey Has Advantage.

New Jersey has great advantage over other states in laying its claims for the next meeting of the governors. It is the only state represented by a governor and a governor-elect and to place they asked the conference to convene in remote from those social activities the visitors have partaken of here. The theory is advanced that more real work will be done at Springfield, N. J., than would be done at any state capital where the residents naturally would want to shower entertainment before upon such a distinguished assemblage.

Following a general discussion, in open conference, on the subject of employers' liability and workers' compensation act, a resolution in this connection, introduced by Governor Hadley, of Missouri, was adopted. It provides that commissioners who are investigating this matter in several states send a report of their findings to all governors.

Governor Deeney, of Illinois, reopened the subject of conservation by asking Governor Shaffroth, of Colorado, if the western states would be willing to preserve the forests at headquarters so as to avoid floods each year in other states. Governor Norris replied that the experience of the western states in the preservation of forests and reforestation was that the flood situation was not aided.

MRS. ELLA MCCOY DIES SUD- DENLY.

Mrs. George B. Hall of 804 West Berry street received word last night of the death of her mother, Mrs. Ella B. McCoy of Indianapolis. Mrs. McCoy had been taken ill on street car, was removed to a drug store and from there in an ambulance to her home, where she died a few moments later. The cause of death is not yet known. Mrs. McCoy was returning home from a meeting of the trustees of the Indianapolis Woman's Prison. She was also a member of the state board of charities. Mrs. Hall and Miss Harriet McCoy are the only surviving children. Mrs. McCoy and her daughter visited Mrs. Hall here last week.

CHILD CAUSE OF A LEGAL BATTLE

Children's Guardians and Mother Both Want a Little Girl.

CASE UP TOMORROW

A three cornered legal fight will open in the juvenile court tomorrow for the possession of a girl of eight years old who is known as Mary Pattee and who was adopted when she was an infant by Mr. and Mrs. Lytle Pattee, of 3224 South Calhoun street.

The mother of the child is now Mrs. Blanche Avanz, of Chicago, and she is here after her daughter. She was formerly Blanche Battillon and says that after she married her present husband word was conveyed to her that the child had died.

She learned this was not true and through the local police department found that the child was here. In the meantime the board of children's guardians had begun a legal fight on the ground that Mrs. Pattee was unfit to have the custody of the little girl and yesterday Deputy Sheriff Walter Immel succeeded, after a long search, in getting hold of the child. She is now in the custody of the matron at the county jail.

Be Will Hold Meeting.

In the absence of President W. P. French, Vice President C. M. Nizer called a meeting of the Allen County Bar association for the superior court room at 10 o'clock tomorrow morning to take some action on the death of John P. Rodabaugh.

Notes of the Courts.

In the superior court decrees of divorce were given Anna Ensch from Jacob Ensch and to Laura Herman from John Herman. Mrs. Herman's maiden name of Gaskill was restored.

Judge C. E. Sturgis has denied a new trial in the suit of Mary Ault against the Nickel Plate road in which she obtained a judgment for $5,500 on account of injuries sustained when she was run down by a switch engine in the local yards of the company. The case was tried at Bluffton and the company will take an appeal.

An announced some time ago the injunction suits filed by the Leikhauf Packing company and the actions filed against the concern were dismissed yesterday afternoon. An agreement had been previously reached by which the company was to get a city meat license and this was granted.

Warm Automobile Gauntlets, Fleece and Wool lined, $1.50 to $3.50; Fur lined, $5.00.

ANGRY DAD GETS AFTER THE BRIDE

Mrs. Poinsette to Face Warrant When She Gets Back Home.

THEFT IS CHARGED

When Mrs. Georgia Killen Poinsette returns from a trip to Hillsdale, Mich., where she went yesterday to become the bride of Henry Poinsette, she will not get the parental blessing unless her bride father undergoes a change of heart before a warrant is served charging her with the theft of $5.

The affidavit was filed in the city court today and it sets out that the bride's exchequer was touched for $5 of the money used to finance an elopement in which the couple figured yesterday. This was half of the coin that was invested, the husband, he supplying the other half of the fund.

Asked the Police to Look.

The father of the bride is George Killen, who lives at 2036 South Calhoun street, and yesterday he asked the police to locate his daughter, saying she had left the city.

Later he learned that she had eloped and then he grew angry and this morning he attached his name to the affidavit and a warrant was issued and is now in the hands of the police department ready to serve when the young people get back from their honeymoon, which is likely to be a short one, unless they are able to raise more funds than they are reputed to have left home with.

He threatened last night that he would have a gun on tap for them when they came back for the parental blessing and then disbursed his money was gone and the affidavit followed.

The bride is older than her husband, who is 18, and a son of Jacob Poinsette, of 1016 Maumee avenue. She had been doing a turn as a singer at the Star theater.

WIFE TELLS HER STORY IN COURT

Oscar Lewis Would Not Provide for Her and His Child.

UP TO UPPER COURT

Oscar Lewis is a barber whose wages go for drink in spite of the fact that he has a wife and a child four years old to support. He was in the city court today and Judge J. Frank Mungovan is so anxious to make an example of some fellow of this sort that he sent him to state's prison if the judge decides that he is guilty of wife desertion.

Mrs. Lewis said that for months she has clocked out a living on the pittance that he could spare from the saloons and that recently he abandoned her after she had forcibly held him up and taken $3 from his pocket. In doing which she entirely wrecked a dilapidated sort of shirt of the kind usually worn by men who love drink too well.

The wife did not deny that she is quick tempered, but said that his utter disregard of his duty to her and his child had aggravated her and that when he left her she borrowed a dime to ride on the car to the Germania park stop and was compelled to walk from there five miles to the home of her parents and trundle a baby carriage along with her. She said it took two hours to warm the baby up, as it was nearly frozen as a result of the experience.

Lewis assumed the air of a martyr and tried to convince the court and the audience that he had been badly mistreated, but the judge took that out of him when he told him that his money is used for drink; that he has no excuse for neglecting his family, and that he had done this very thing in the face of repeated warnings.

The prisoner's mother asked to be allowed to testify and her evidence, given to aid the son, indicated that family interference is largely responsible for the trouble between Lewis and his wife. Judge Mungovan says he will use his best efforts to send at least one man to state's prison for wife desertion and hopes, with the aid of the higher court, to break up the practice.

We carry Regulars, Slims and Stouts in Union Suits, Wool, $2.00 to $7.00; Cotton, $1.00 to $2.00.

POLICE GET MAN AND CONFESSION

Raymond Martin Says He Robbed Branstrator But Not Garrison.

HAD MONEY ON HIM

Raymond A. Martin, who says he came from Pittsburgh to Fort Wayne last Sunday morning, was arrested today by Captain Robert Dickson and Paul Dan Kintz and later confessed that he robbed Duke Branstrator of $25 after he had enticed him into the alley south of the Lyric theater building and slugged him.

He was questioned closely as to when he came to Fort Wayne and said that he did not arrive until Sunday morning, but the police will make a rigid investigation of this in the hope that they can connect the man with the death of Joel Garrison, who died as the result of injuries thought to have been inflicted in a successful attempt to rob him.

A man named Geary was with Martin last night and is a valuable witness. He said that Martin asked him to go with him and "get" Branstrator, but he refused and did not hear of the robbery until this morning. Martin told the police that he went with Branstrator to several saloons and drank with him and they finally started for the show at the Lyric. The afternoon performance was over when they got there and he induced his victim to go into the alley and slugged him.

The first blow was not effective and he delivered another and took $25 from his pocket and skipped out. He was apprehended on West Main street this morning after Detective Sergeant Papert had been on his trail for some time.

There have been no new developments in the Garrison case unless the police can show that Martin is responsible for it. This he denies in the most strenuous terms and says he was not in the city at the time it happened. The police think they have a good case against him and will be able to hold him so that they can get him any time they want him.

Detective Sergeant Hall went to Hastings, Mich., today to get Fred Fuller, wanted on a charge of embezzlement preferred by the Jewel Tea company. He is said to have taken nearly $800 from the company.

A QUESTION

Shall We or Shall We Not Have a Christmas Dinner at the Fort Wayne Rescue Home and Mission?

The Superintendent of the Fort Wayne Rescue Home and Mission has been convinced that the giving of Xmas dinners is not spending money in the most practical way or to the best advantage. Learning from past experience that the same amount of money could be put to use in a more effective manner, he has decided to discontinue the giving of Xmas dinners in line and provisions, could not have amounted to less than $75, to give one sumptuous meal to individuals that they might indulge to excess their appetites. While at the same time some were in want of the real necessities of life, I want in contrast with that to present another method for making people happy. Here is a list of articles purchased and given in homes and to individuals with money (to the amount of $32.20) given to the Mission by the South Wayne Baptist Sunday School.

Dec. 27 Shoes	1.25
Feb. 5 Shoes	1.50
Feb. 5 Shoes	1.50
Feb. 8 Shoes	1.25
Feb. 8 Repairing Shoes	.60
Feb. 10 Bread, Beans, Meat	.68
Feb. 11 Shoes	1.50
Feb. 17 Shoes	1.25
Feb. 19 Shoes	1.25
March 12 Shoes and Rubbers	2.00
March 14 Shoes	1.50
March 14 Bread and Meat	.35
March 26 Shoes	1.25
Total	$32.20

In addition to this from the same source came potatoes, flour, lard, bread, tea, coffee, canned corn, pumpkin, peas and fruit enough to be distributed in 17 different homes at a time when most needed.

In my opinion this is far the better way. At our last Xmas dinner 270 children and adults were given one good feed that possibly cost 30 cents each and at the same time it is probable that there were 5 to 20 homes represented there that were in need of food, coal, shoes, clothing, etc., and it seems to me that the dinner makes an outward show, but does not do much real good, while by the other method real needy persons are helped without letting the left hand know what the right hand does. In this part of our work we endeavor to work in hearty co-operation with the Associated Charities and the township trustees, knowing that there should be great discretion used in it, yet to offer salvation to the hungry, the tattered, the sick, with no apparent care for the physical needs, is not the method of the Christ. Hence, if you feel inclined to help the other fellow when help is most needed to aid the widowed mother who is giving her very life's blood to keep her little children together (because she loves as other mothers with plenty, loves her little ones, and to take one away and put it in a home, however good the home may be, breaks her heart and also the child's) then help us start a fund for this particular purpose, and not for this only, but many a parent would send their children to Sunday school and come themselves if they had the necessary clothing. Help our workers to clothe them by adding to this fund in cash or by giving your cast off clothing (I mean such as can be used) whatever you intend doing for the mission towards giving an Xmas dinner, please consider this plan of work running through the whole year, and instead of making happy hearts one day, let us be prepared to make glad homes 365 days in the year. Last year the very day our dinner was given two poor mothers when through eating their sumptuous meal came and asked if it would be possible for us to give them a little coal as they had none. And how glad we were that we had the money given us by the South Wayne Baptist Sunday school to use for this purpose. I give this to the public hoping you will get hold of the real thing instead of the spectacular. While proposing to adopt this method we intend to have an Xmas tree, one of the largest we can get and that can be put inside our chapel, and nothing will be left undone to have a same merry Xmas. Will speak of this later.

NEWS OF FORT WAYNE'S NEIGHBORS

HERMIT HID WEALTH
IN A RUSTY CAN

Search in an Attic Revealed It and
of $75,000.

Lagrange, Ind., Dec. 1.—A battered tin can buried beneath the dusty gloom of a ramshackle attic in an old Lagrange county mansion recently brought to light the last eccentric act of an eccentric old man and gave to his relatives the fortune of $75,000 they had counted as lost.

J. Calvin Kinney was an eccentric old character well known throughout Lagrange county. He lived in seclusion. Shortly before his death he turned his fortune into government bonds and severed all business and social relations.

The old man died without making a will. He died in the gloomy old mansion as he had lived—alone. After the funeral search was made for the $75,000 worth of government bonds. They were not found and almost conclusive evidence had been discovered tending to show the bonds were destroyed by the queer old character.

Hope of finding the fortune had been abandoned by Kinney's relatives. He seemed to be the one man who took his fortune with him when he died. The mansion Kinney called his home never was occupied after his death. It was left to rot and decay, nothing about the place was touched. The chairs, tables and other furniture stood in the places the old character had placed them.

When the big house degenerated into a tumble-down shack, workmen set about tearing it down to make way for a new property. It was during the progress of this work that a laborer came upon the rusty tin can in the attic. This can contained interest coupons Kinney had clipped from his government bonds. The interest never had been collected the coupons had been placed in the tin and thrown into the attic corner.

Search for the bonds was renewed. Kinney's body was exhumed and the casket searched, but nothing was found. However, Kinney's ownership of the bonds had been established and a special act of congress provides for the reimbursement of his heirs.

Frank A. Preston, general agent of the Fidelity and Deposit company, has just returned from Baltimore, where he went to deliver the $145,000 indemnifying bond for the government to former Congressman Clarence C. Gilliams.

ATTEMPTED SUICIDE.

Saturated Rag With Chloroform and Covered His Face.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 1.—Saturating a rag with chloroform and placing the cloth to his face, Cleveland (Andy) Pollock, former Wayne township constable, attempted to commit suicide, but his condition was discovered by Night Officer Charles W. Douglass before he had succeeded in accomplishing his purpose.

Earlier in the day Cleveland Pollock and his brother, Ernest E. Pollock, head of the Lake City Stock company, who played in Warsaw last week, had a misunderstanding. At this time the former threatened to take his life. Ernest Pollock, who found it necessary to be in Akron Tuesday night, requested the police to look after his brother and see that he did not carry his threats into effect.

During the evening Officer Douglass passed the Pollock place on West Market street. There was a light in one of the rooms at that time. On returning a short time later he noticed that the lamp had been extinguished. He knocked at a door but received no response. He then entered and found Cleveland Pollock in bed with his head covered with a blanket. Near him was a two-ounce bottle containing about a fourth of an ounce of chloroform.

When questioned Pollock declared that another night was coming and that he would succeed in killing himself; that he proposed to try it again.

DREDGE WORK DELAYED.

Hartford City, Ind., Dec. 1.—Work on dredging the Salamonie may be discontinued temporarily for the reason that the contractors, Hummer & Co., can draw no money from their work. The contract price of the improvement is $64,475. A large amount of work has been done and a large sum has been paid on estimates. But neither the Jay nor the Blackford county treasurers have any more money to speak of on hand until the taxpayers get busy and pay in their assessments.

EAGER TO WORK
Health Regained by Right Food.

The average healthy man or woman is usually eager to be busy at some useful task or employment.

But let dyspepsia or indigestion get hold of one, and all endeavor becomes a burden.

"A year ago, after recovering from an operation," writes a Michigan lady, "my stomach and nerves began to give me much trouble."

"At times my appetite was voracious, but when indulged, indigestion followed. Other times I had no appetite whatever. The food I took did not nourish me and I grew weaker than ever."

"I lost interest in everything and wanted to be alone. I had always had good nerves, but now the merest trifle would upset me and bring on a violent headache. Walking across the room was an effort and prescribed exercise was out of the question."

"I had seen Grape-Nuts advertised, but did not believe what I read at the time. At last when it seemed as if I was literally starving, I began to eat Grape-Nuts."

"I had not been able to work for a year, but now after two months on Grape-Nuts I am eager to be at work again. My stomach gives me no trouble now, my nerves are steady as ever, and interest in life and ambition have come back with the return to health."

WERE THE BYRDS IN HORSETHIEF GANG?

That is the Question a Jury in the Bluffton Courts is Trying to Solve.

Bluffton, Ind., Dec. 1.—The trial of the case of the state against William Byrd of Jackson township, on the charge of receiving stolen horses, one of the criminal cases against the notorious Byrd gang of horse thieves, was begun in the circuit court here yesterday before Judge C. E. Sturgis and a jury.

William Byrd, according to the state, is one of the members of the gang of horse thieves which was run to cover last winter and it was at his place in Jackson township where the "fence" was kept. It is alleged that he bought the horses which were stolen by the active members of the gang, getting them at a cheap price, and then disposing of them.

At the time the secrets of the gang were unearthed seven men were arrested. Four of these men are now in the prisons of this state and Ohio and one of them, Charles Ferguson of Marion, is a fugitive from justice, he having been sentenced to the Michigan City prison, but escaped from the Grant county jail while being held as a trusty.

The cases against William and James Byrd were postponed from time to time. Ferguson, who turned state's evidence after his sentence, was relied upon as one of the principal witnesses for the state, but he cannot be located.

James Byrd, the brother of the defendant in the present case, is also under indictment on the same charge, with a total of ten separate indictments against the two. But they are not being tried jointly, and the trial started yesterday is for William Byrd alone, and the specific charge alleged is that he received a horse which was stolen from F. W. Buecker of Allen county on June 28, 1908, and which he bought from Oscar Bunker and Charles Ferguson for $50.

The Byrds have employed the best legal talent and are fighting the cases vigorously. The taking of the testimony was begun yesterday afternoon, the entire forenoon being spent in the selection of a jury.

TAUGHT OVER FIFTY YEARS.

Mrs. Stockhouse, of Nappanee, Now 72
Years of Age.

Warsaw, Ind., Dec. 1.—Mrs. M. A. Stockhouse, of Nappanee, has been visiting this week with Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Stephenson in this city. Mrs. Stockhouse is 72 years old and is, perhaps, one of the oldest school teachers in this state, having taught over fifty years, most of the time in Kosciusko county. On account of this long service in the educational line it is understood that the legislature this winter will be asked to recognize this faithfulness by granting the aged teacher a pension for her remaining years.

ON LIBRARY BOARD.

Decatur, Ind., Dec. 1.—Mrs. Ed Bailey, a well known teacher of this city, and interested in educational lines, has been appointed by Judge Merryman as a member of the public library board, succeeding Mrs. L. G. Ellingham, who resigned recently upon removing to Indianapolis, where her husband will serve as secretary of state.

APPROPRIATES $10,669.

Kendallville, Ind., Dec. 1.—At the meeting of the city council an ordinance was passed appropriating $10,669.10 to be used by the city of Kendallville for the expense of the street and alley intersections along Main, Mitchell and Rush streets.

JURY DISAGREED.

Columbia City, Ind., Dec. 1.—Disagreement of the jury was the result of the Peter Chavey vs. Isaac Schrader horse case, in which the plaintiff wanted $135 damages.

Cheap Board.

New Arrival at breakfast in his boarding house—Will one of you gentlemen tell me how much it costs to board an automobile here?

Gentleman (at his left)—About $20, I think.

Carate—But you can board a horse for $25.

Professor of Mathematics—And you can board a trolley for 5 cents.—Success Magazine.

A Motorcycle Parade.

The Carstone club members were discussing the speed of motorcycles when the ancient carpenter, who had just come in, joined in the conversation.

"Talking about motorcycles," he said, "I took a count of them in front of my house the other evening."

"I noticed that a continual string of them seemed to be coming by the place, so I started in counting."

"By the time I had reached 987 I made a peculiar discovery. I happened to notice by a mark of the tire of the wheel that it was the same motorcycle that I had been tallying."

"The rider went so fast round and round the block that I mistook him for a strident—Yookers Statesman."

The Point of View.

Uncle George Snow, an old antebellum negro, was introduced for the state. The counsel asked Uncle George which side of Souchatouches creek he lived on, to which he replied:

"Which side of the creek do I live on, boss?"

"Yes."

"Gwine up or down the creek, boss?"

THE SPITTING EVIL

Editor of The Sentinel: Stop spitting. "Spitting is against the laws of this state and decency." This is plainly announced in placards in all of Fort Wayne's street cars, yet the intelligent do not heed it. Begin our "city beautiful" with a clean foundation.

Were a man to shoot a galling gun down Calhoun street at noon he would be doing no more than men and women are doing who have diseased teeth or bodies (as the mouth is the favorite breeding place for bacteria) breathing out, expectorating every where, giving all the diseases they have to be put into dust and so breathed into the mouths and lungs of those who traverse the streets, and tracked into our homes.

Diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis are a few diseases that are spread by spitting. Stop it, it only reduces your own expense from sickness. Dr. Hurty of the state board of health gives us statistics proving Indiana's death rate from tuberculosis four-fifths yearly. The highest of any state in the union. Appalling!

What then, of three men, marked for death by this white plague, whom the writer has seen twice daily during the past summer spitting right where from four to eight boys play handball, the ball frequently rolling through the poisonous sputum.

These children are the future citizens—the future state. "Be guardians of the entrance way to your bodies." Smallpox, diphtheria, scarlet fever and tuberculosis reaped a harvest of young lives last winter in Fort Wayne at a time commonly supposed that bacteria is frozen.

Dr. W. A. Evans, commissioner of health, Chicago, Ill., generously affords us enlightenment by the following facts. To quote:

"We are coming to understand the eruption of scarlet fever as secondary. The most important part of scarlet fever is a focus of infection located in the mouth, nose or pharynx, and that the poisons therefrom are circulating through the body. Thus the poisons are but giving expression to themselves in eruption."

Diphtheria is due to absorptions in the nose or mouth. The importance of diphtheria seems to be understood, but the enlargements of the glands of the neck, of the nose, tonsils and pharynx not so clearly.

Dr. Wiley has fought hard to give us pure food and the least we can do is to attend to it that the entrance way is clean. An ounce of prevention for the good of health, decency and our state. Obey the law to stop expectorating. Stop drinking from public drinking fountains and you will benefit yourself and thousands of others, physically, mentally and morally.

FOR GOOD HEALTH.

"Yes; a telephone call to go to the theatre, and nobody home to button up your dress."

YOUNG AMERICAN SINGER STEPS FROM STUDENT TO PRIMA DONNA.

THREE CHARACTERISTIC PORTRAIT STUDIES OF MISS MAE BRONTE.

New York, Dec. 1.—Who has not heard the old story of the chorus girl who fills the prima donna's role at a moment's notice and thus establishes for herself recognition as a singer of leading roles? Miss Mae Bronte, prima donna at the Hippodrome, has gone one better in the matter of rapid acquisition of fame, for as the "Spit of Niagara" she is appearing in her first role on any stage, and this is at first role on any stage, and this is at the same time the prima donna part.

Never before had Miss Bronte faced an audience until at the beginning of the present season she stepped out upon the big Hippodrome stage before the first night crowd that filled the vast auditorium. That such an experience was a trying one need hardly be told, and the young woman speaks of it now as "the psychological moment" of her career.

Moved By Spirit of Daring. "What I should ever have done had I given way to stage fright. I do not know, for that would have meant the end of my ambitions even before I had begun to realize them. I had sung at some drawing room entertainments, which were my only public appearances, and yet when I saw the big semi-circular curtain at the 'Hip' sink down beneath the stage, when I heard the crash of the overture, and realized that now I was 'in' for it, an almost insane spirit of daring manifested itself in me. I suppose it was prompted by my absolute determination to make good."

"Who taught you how to use make-up?" she was asked, and the young singer responded with a burst of hearty laughter. "Everybody! That is to say, first of all, the girls in the company, and then every one took a hand in improving my make-up, even the producers, Mr. Burnside, Mr. Voegtlin and Mr. Klein. I began by making up much too heavily, as I suppose most novices do, but I soon learned that a little bit of make-up goes a great way, and now I am quite proud of having adopted one which is becoming though not too obvious."

"You have grand opera ambitions, of course?" was the next question. "Not a bit of it," she retorted, unexpectedly. "But I have ambitions, although they do not lie in that direction. My teacher, Mr. Oscar Sanger, with whom I studied for two years before my debut, wished me to undertake grand opera, but I have never had a longing to succeed in that field, though I have a repertoire of parts, among them Carmen, Delilah and Mignon. My voice is mezzo-soprano, and I have a range of three octaves, taking in high E flat. But I'll tell you why I don't want to go in for grand opera. It is because one has to wait so long for recognition. One is old before one is famous, and it seems to me that it is lots more fun to fulfill one's ambitions in youth."

Trained for Grand Opera. Miss Bronte's views are more or less natural coming from a young woman who begins her career with a prima donna role before she is twenty, for her twentieth birthday is just past. This young singer hails from Brooklyn, and was a pupil at the Erasmus high school. Her father and mother encouraged her musical studies with no idea that she would dedicate them to a public career.

"My father and mother would not come to see me at the Hippodrome until about two weeks ago, they were so much opposed to my going into the theater. My father still insists that a young woman's place is 'in the home,' but I think I shall win them over eventually. I tell my parents that they do not realize the splendid opportunity I have had at the Hippodrome. I might have worked for years without having a chance to sing leading parts, and here I am with a fine position, right at the start of my career—but I haven't told you yet what my real ambition is. I want to be a star, of course, but I want to star in light opera, for in that branch of musical work youth finds an opportunity."

Miss Bronte is a beautiful girl of the statuesque type, which suggests grand opera more than musical comedy, yet it is safe to assume that she will win her way in her chosen field since she cloths to do so, and has already passed the most difficult stage of advancement—the first appearance in an important role. There is an alternate prima donna at the Hippodrome, inasmuch as daily matinees make it impossible for one singer to undertake the arduous task.

Wins Her Parents Finally. "I wish you would please say something for me in your interview about the consideration which has been shown to me during my first season," the young singer requested. "I do not know enough about the theatrical profession to encourage a newcomer, but every one at the Hippodrome has been splendid to me. Of course, I was terribly 'green' when the season commenced, but they all seemed anxious to help me and to point out my mistakes in the pleasantest manner possible. Sometimes I become fearfully ambitious, and plan so far ahead that I suddenly realize with a start how very small has been my actual experience. I say to myself, 'I will succeed! I will! I will!' I know I have talent! I know I have!—and then I tumble down from my perch of self-esteem and whisper to myself: 'I wonder if it's just that I'm conceited.' I suppose every one doubts his or her ability."

DR. COOK, EXPLORER.

Dr. Frederick A. Cook's latest contribution to the literature of the arctic is not in itself nearly so strange as he should venture again to address the public. Dr. Cook now admits it is possible he did not reach the pole, though he makes a sufficient reservation for the possibility of his having done so. He says he was led by the tremendous conditions of arctic solitude and came out wilderness of ice and snow not her responsible for what he did did. So it would seem. At the time Dr. Cook went about his delusions in a very circumstantial and matter-of-fact way. He proclaimed his discovery; he gave oral testimony to Danish scientists that convinced them of the merit of his claims and constrained their sovereign to honor him signally; he came home and received the plaudits and acceptance of the honors of a worshipping people; he launched upon an enormously profitable course of lectures; he wrote a captivating story of his arctic wanderings and his conquest of the pole; he took down for that what many do not earn in a long lifetime; he failed to the rising importunities of the public and his friends to forward to the Danish scientists the proofs of his challenged feat; he said, "wait, I will show you—I have been at the north pole!" he finally skeddaddled and left his face, avoiding his friends and shuffling away from any who might know him. Still the human mind sometimes is a wonder-working ferment-vat of the queer, the spectacular, the picturesque and the bizarre. Dr. Cook may have been suffering all this while from what he says ailed him. Schizophrenia and gumdrops as a steady diet in the late hours of a long arctic night may do as much to a man as a barrel or a mince pie down here in the briefest nocturnal spells. It may be that the doctor got on his back and could not turn over in time. There is no boundary to the range of speculation here. The doctor is explaining it himself in the forthcoming issue of a magazine. We incline to an opinion that he isn't doing it for even his own battered health.

Governor Marshall's appointment of Mr. James H. Fry, of Fort Wayne, to the office of chief of inspector has a three-fold merit of placing a fit and competent man in the office, of giving a choice that will command general approbation and of rewarding a democrat whose loyalty and service give him good desert to disjunction and emolument. Mr. Fry is well known here, where he has always taken a very energetic part in the work of democratic organizations, and in which his activities have been enthusiastic and effective. Save for terms as a member of the Fort Wayne board of school trustees he has never held public office. Mr. Fry will take to his new duties not only abilities of a high order but a very engaging personality. His friends in Fort Wayne are deeply gratified by Governor Marshall's selection and appointment of him to this important post in the state service.

The purpose of Judge Mungovan, of the city court, to bring upon wife deserters a severe punishment than his court has power to inflict deserves the good opinions of the community. There are too many instances of the sort. The law should lay its hand heavy upon the man who spends all his earnings for drink or who will not work at all, leaving wife and little ones to shift as best the outraged woman can contrive. Many of these cases the public hears nothing of, because the suffering women have a painful sensitiveness to notoriety or fear they may be wrongfully blamed for trouble in the home. All feel the shame of their situation, but some are driven by hard circumstances to face the public with their woes. The law provides a severe but futile penalty for the delinquents of whom these women are the victims. They may be sent to prison, but that merely takes from them absolutely any power to aid their families. A workhouse and farm for delinquents of this sort would solve a problem that presses for solution. We also believe that highway construction offers another opening for employment of such labor. The good roads propaganda ought to open up some very practical possibilities. Employed under duress in this way the delinquent could be made to earn his own keeping and enough more to insure some degree of comfort to his family. When scamps of the sort who permit wife and children to suffer understand it is a case of work and providing domestic support either at liberty or under confinement there will be less wife-beating, less impoverishing debauchery, less loafing and fewer cases of desertion. Let it be tried and the experiment will unravel a social question that long has puzzled.

Portugal's revolution finally has got around to the other side of the earth, where the military and naval forces in the island of Madeira have revolted and wrested concessions from the island government by laymen arguments. The signal deed of the revolutionists was to charge a convent and, without notice or time for preparation, rout the nuns and make them quit the island. All told, it appears to have been what little Peterkin's grandiose would call a famous victory. It is always both martial and manly to rout women—especially the unresisting women of the Catholic sisterhoods. Would like to see those Macao squad charge a phalanx of English suffragettes.

We commend to the general notice the admirable conduct of Captain Robert E. Peary. Captain Peary declines to make any comment on the confession of his friend Doc Cook and seems to have deep misgivings that he is not making his silence emphatic enough. Let not his soul be troubled. Everybody who knows anything about what the commander had handed to him for the ungenerous spirit in which he came down from the north will understand and appreciate that Captain Peary is on the dead square and does not want to say anything.

Mr. Taft is pressing economy harder and harder upon the heads of the great executive departments and already a very tidy lot of millions has been cut from the estimates. Why try to do it by cheese-paring and scissors-snipping? Call in Uncle Nels, who is expected to be cut out of a job after March 4, and let him go at it with an ax and put that $200,000,000 on the good side of the book.

Word from Washington is to the unpleasant effect that there will be no chance whatever to get recognition during the coming session of congress for the Fort Wayne waterway project. It puts the matter off a little longer, but we believe a square deal can be had from the next congress, which certainly we have not had from this.

There is going to be a real noticeable boom in seltzer and soda when those governors get back home from Kentucky. Even hospitality is a sentiment whose expression may be overdone. Besides, the governors met to solve some of the problems that vex the multitude.

All right, Doc; if it's your choice that we consider you crazy instead of crooked, we'll let it go at that.

After studious perusal of the defense in the case of the Chicago police department vs. Mary Garden and her Salome, we conclude that Mary Garden's art consists of a good deal of Mary Garden.

IN THE CITY'S CHURCHES

HAS CELEBRATED DECENNIAL ANNIVERSARY OF CONSECRATION TO BISHOPRIC.

RT. REV. HERMAN J. ALERDING.

Bishop of the Catholic Diocese of Fort Wayne Who Has Received Tokens of Love.

AS MARK OF LOVE FOR THEIR BISHOP

Knights of Columbus Present Bishop Alerding Purse of Gold.

SURPRISED PRELATE

Another surprise came Wednesday to Rt. Rev. Herman J. Alerding, the bishop of this diocese, when the Fort Wayne council of the Knights of Columbus, one of the leading Catholic organizations of the city, honored him on the occasion of the tenth anniversary of his bishopric with tributes of praise and a substantial testimonial of regard in the presentation to him of a purse of $600 in gold, the second gift of that character he had received during the day.

The event took place in the council hall of the Knights of Columbus, which was crowded with guests, the members of the fraternity and their ladies, the clergy of the diocese and others. The meeting was called to order by Grand Knight E. J. Ehrman, who introduced the lecturer, Frank J. Voirel, to preside, and then the district deputy, Charles M. Niezer, in an address, paid honor to the bishop and closed with the presentation to him of the purse of gold, saying in part:

"As a substantial form of the appreciation the council bears you as a result of your faithful services in the midst of its members, I hereby tender you this token as the humble effort of this gathering to evidence its love and steadfast friendship that is truly yours."

The gift came as a surprise to Bishop Alerding and he was deeply affected. "To express the thoughts that are now uppermost in my mind," he declared, "is but to express the pleasure it gives me to be here. That the members of this council have enlisted themselves in the greatest cause, that of the education of the youth, which consists in training him mentally, morally and physically, is evident from the history of the great organization."

Rt. Rev. Joseph Chartrand, the recently consecrated conductor bishop of Indianapolis, and Very Rev. Andrew Morrissey, C. S. C., of Notre Dame, delivered addresses. The evening at the hall was spent afterwards in a social manner.

Mr. Ehrman's Address.
The program was opened by Grand Knight Edward J. Ehrman. His address of welcome was extended the large and dignified gathering of clergy and laity and was in brief: "On behalf of Fort Wayne council of the Knights of Columbus I bid you a most hearty welcome. We have invited you to join us in a little celebration arranged in honor of our Rt. Rev. and beloved bishop, who today completes ten years of most successful labors in the diocese of Fort Wayne. Fort Wayne council has received many favors at the hands of our bishop and this evening is to be devoted in an open expression of the high esteem in which he is held by the members of the Fort Wayne council."

The council lecturer, Frank J. Voirel, to whom the entertainment was then turned over, was most felicitous in the greetings he extended the bishop and in a most pleasing manner introduced the speakers of the evening and others who rendered the vocal and instrumental musical selections. Rev. Edward Mungovan, of Arcadia, and Rev. August Young, of Carroll, were among the visiting priests at the celebration.

EXPECTS VICTORY IN IN FORT WAYNE EFFORT

which they have carried with them on similar work around the world. The instrument was with them in Honolulu, in Australia, in China and elsewhere.

"It has been our privilege to hold more than a thousand of these meetings," said Mr. Asher, "and we have always been treated with the greatest respect. Mrs. Asher, who always accompanies me, has yet to hear the first uncouth word in a meeting of this character. Men always remove their hats and quite generally the proprietors suspend all business of their own free will during the half hour we are conducting the service."

As the Chapman-Alexander meetings progress the scope is being broadened daily in the development of the big systematic plan to cover the entire city with the influence of the services. The ordinary evangelistic effort is confined to one central point. Instead here are a score of special workers, with the city divided into districts, and each is assigned a specific duty in the great effort which is to continue in Fort Wayne for the next three weeks.

Expects Great Results.

Declaring that he confidently expected marvelously successful results in soul-winning as well as a deepened and enriched religious faith from the evangelistic campaign now inaugurated in Fort Wayne, Dr. J. Wilbur Chapman delivered his initial message to the audience at Princess rink Wednesday night. Its keynote was that before men and women could be led to the cross, there must first be genuine concern for "soul-winning among those who already know the Christ."

"Salvation is not a matter of holding 'meeting,' declared Dr. Chapman, "and a crowd is not a revival. Jesus usually said the things that scattered a crowd. But whenever there is first a deep concern for souls, then you can begin to make way for the converts."

Glad to Be in Fort Wayne.

"It is a great pleasure to me to be in Fort Wayne tonight," said Dr. Chapman. "I do not feel that I am a stranger in this city. I know many of your prominent business men well. I have heard from them frequently. I know that during our tour of the world their prayers were with us for the success of the world-wide evangelistic movement. Fourteen of the best years of my life have been spent at Winona lake. It was my pleasure to conduct meetings in Fort Wayne some years ago, and I feel that in returning at this time it is almost like coming home."

"I have counted on these Fort Wayne meetings more than on those of any other city of similar size. I have told my fellow-workers that we could well afford to pass by the larger cities for the time being and come to Fort Wayne. I know you are interested in bringing souls to Christ, and I know you will help us. I believe that in the next two or three weeks we are to see marvelous things in Fort Wayne. We come to you after a marvelous experience of six weeks in Chicago, where approximately one million people heard the message of the gospel."

Fine Consecration.
"I will never forget the splendid work of those Chicago business men. It was the greatest exhibition of Christian consecration I have ever known. They erected two great buildings at a cost of something like $8,000 for the sole purpose of our meetings for two weeks. We came to Fort Wayne because we believe you will pray for us and help us. Mr. Alexander and myself have evolved a plan for Fort Wayne that has never been tried in any other city. I believe it is a divinely-directed system for special work in Fort Wayne, and we hope within the next few days to put it into operation, and to see it successful in winning souls to the Master."

As was the case upon the opening night, Mr. Alexander conducted a song service before Dr. Chapman began speaking, though the evangelist at the outset read the Twenty-third Psalm and offered a brief prayer. The night was inclement, and while the rink was not filled the audience was a large one.

One Hymn a Favorite.
"He Will Hold Me Fast," the hymn that the first night audience grasped with melodious fervor and earnestness, was again a favorite last night, and again and again evangelists, choir and audience sang the swinging chorus. Four little boys in the audience stood up and sang it; a score of school children in a group sang it; the men sang it; the women sang it—everybody sang it and sang it as if they really meant every word and every note of it.

"You wonder why we use this hymn so much," asked Mr. Alexander. "Well, I'll tell you. It's to help folks. Today a man who was in the audience last night approached me and told me that this hymn had been the very YOUNG HOOSIER SINGER WITH THE CHAPMAN-ALEXANDER PARTY.

One of the singers with the Chapman-Alexander party is

EARLE W. NAFZIGER, man-Alexander evangelistic party is an Indiana young man who, though but 25 years of age, has already sung his gospel message over a big scope of the world's territory. He is Earle W. Nafziger, whose baritone voice of marvelous sweetness and power is heard nightly at the Princess rink meetings.

"This is my first engagement with Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander in Indiana," said Mr. Nafziger to The Sentinel, "and as Indiana is my native state I have naturally been looking forward with much interest to our coming to Fort Wayne. It seems like home to me."

Young Mr. Nafziger was born at Logansport, and is a son of Rev. Leslie J. Nafziger, one of the most prominent ministers of the North Indiana Methodist Episcopal conference, who has many friends in Fort Wayne. Rev. Mr. Nafziger, who was formerly pastor at Lagrange and later presiding elder at Ellettsville, is now stationed at Greendale. The son has been a member of Dr. Chapman's party for the past five or six years and accompanied the evangelist on his Australian tour. His solos are invariably heard with keen pleasure, for aside from a voice of exceptional quality, Mr. Nafziger possesses marked power of expression.

Some Familiar Ones.

Other hymns followed, most of them old and familiar—"Just As I Am," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and others, besides Mr. Nafziger's solo, "Somebody's Here With an Achin' Heart," before Dr. Chapman began speaking. When he did so he especially urged attendance upon the quiet hour services to be held daily at the First Presbyterian church at 10 o'clock in the morning. Dr. Chapman and Mr. Alexander conduct them and they are practically the same services held during the noon-day business men's meetings in Chicago. W. R. Lane, of London, England, an associate of the famous "Gipsy" Smith, joined the Chapman-Alexander party yesterday and will assist in the work in Fort Wayne.

"The text I have chosen this evening," began Dr. Chapman, "has been selected because we cannot have a revival without it, and because if we preach to yourself," he announced as he took the 22:44—"And being in an agony, he prayed more earnestly; and his sweat was as it were great drops of blood falling down to the ground."

"You know of whom I am speaking," said Dr. Chapman. "The unbeliever sometimes reads the new testament and here and there puts a question mark after some statement. He calls it a physical impossibility. He will tell you he couldn't sweat drops of blood. Yet I have held in my hand the hand of a man who received a telegram telling him that his only son had been convicted of murder. His face blanched, he staggered, sank to the ground, he fainted and when they lifted him to his feet the blood had pushed through the pores of his face. That is an actual human happening, and when Jesus was becoming your sin-bearer and mine, I know he could sweat great drops of blood. So I read the text tonight."

Prayer in Varied Forms.

"And being in agony, he prayed more earnestly. There are times in life when prayer is meditation. Sometimes a mere attitude is prayer; sometimes a look; sometimes a gesture. I stood but a short time ago in the little chapel on the Mount of Olives and saw there inscribed the Lord's prayer in twenty-four languages. Sometimes he prayed as in John 17—a prayer of intercession. But how different here—He prayed in an agony. If you could find in Fort Wayne five hundred souls who would pray as Jesus prayed when he began to bear the weight of the world's sin, you would have to build four buildings like this and double the capacity of your churches to hold the people."

stormy mountain of waters—first like a whisper, then louder—"Lost!" And every time the sea ceased its meaning there came again that awful word—"Lost!" O, we need today a spirit of concern for souls. May God give it to us."

Scores Ask for Prayers.

When Dr. Chapman asked those who desired prayers uttered in their behalf to indicate the fact by rising to their feet many did so. Still others joined the number by raising the hand, and Mr. Lane closed the service with a word of prayer.

Personal workers and ushers were asked to remain for a time, and Mr. Norton addressed them, mapping out work for each in connection with the systematic effort to evangelize the city.

In his meeting for young people Wednesday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church Mr. Lowe had an increased attendance, with splendid interest. Miss Ida Stevens sang a solo, "Tell Mother I'll Be There," and Mr. Lowe illustrated the number by the use of stereopticon slides. The young people's meetings are something out of the ordinary, the evangelist using his own methods to present a study of the life of Christ.

In Outside Districts.

Excellent reports come from the Wednesday evening services in the outside districts. At Trinity M. E. church Mr. Lowe's talk was upon the assurance of salvation and was directed chiefly to the church membership. His text was, "Is it well with thee?" There was a fine altar service at the close and many persons expressed a desire for prayer. The choir and the personal workers are doing excellent work.

At the Third Presbyterian church Rev. Mr. Toy had another fine audience and an excellent meeting. His theme was, "Roll ye away the stone." Mr. Dickson led the song service, and both evangelist and singer unite in the belief that the outlook is excellent for a successful meeting on the south side.

Encouraging reports come also from the meeting of the First M. E. church, where Rev. Mr. Nicholson was the speaker, and at the Free Methodist church, where Miss Millar is in charge. Despite the storm the crowds were fully up to the mark of the previous night and the interest marked.

Agony the Price of Power.

"I think it is possible to have power today if we are willing to pay the price—being in an agony. We've gotten today to look too much upon sin—regard it as a mere error of morality. No man could hold that view if he could see some things a minister sees and hear some of the tales of misery that are poured into the minister's ears that are powerful enough to make the heart of a father and mother pleading for help for their loved ones."

Jesus the Expression of God.
"The text shows how God feels about the lost, for Jesus is the expression of God. I could excuse the minister for merely not being eloquent, for not being an orator, for lack of culture, but if I sat as a business man in a pew in his church I could not excuse a lack of concern for the unsaved."

"Grief is concerned; Jesus is concerned. God pity me if I am not. It is the only reason in the world for my presence in Fort Wayne tonight. But for that concern I would go back to my home and my children on the first train that would take me there. It is the spirit of the text that moved the unconverted. It is not a matter of holding meetings. A crowd is not a revival. Jesus usually said the things that scattered the crowd. Wherever there is concern—agony—then make room for converts. I know when there is to be a revival, it is when the ministers begin to have the drawn face and the haggard intensity that marks every true soul-winner; when letters begin to come in; when mothers rise and say, 'Pray for my son.' Whenever you find in the church the spirit of this text of mine it is an easy thing to have people come to Christ, and to have them come. This spirit is not mechanical. You can't work it up. You can get it only by prayer."

Became an Evangelist.

In the Avenue Hotel in Fort Wayne years ago I received a telegram which called me back to Philadelphia to a pastorate for the second time, and three years later I determined to devote my life to evangelistic work. I want to tell you how the trend of my life endeavor was changed. With a friend I stood upon the storm-beaten Atlantic coast. I saw a vessel come bounding in helplessly over the frightful waves. We saw man after man washed overboard and were powerless to aid them. Finally there came to our view the last remaining man upon that vessel. One word hit me shivered in despair. I turned me upon my own course. I have heard that word through all these intervening years; I have heard it in the sleepless night, in the tick of my watch and in the beating of my heart. "Lost!" came the cry across that morning, Rev. W. R. Lane, of one of England's greatest preachers delivered a strong address on the topic of John Mark to the Apostles in his missionary journeys around the world. He told of the experience this young man, who at one time came so discouraged that he gave himself to him for service, and how he was induced to begin when he became one of God's servants. Peter, who was encouraged Mark, said Mr. Lane: "God can use any man, who gives himself to him for service, and Mark is the God who will use him." The gospel of St. Mark's gospel, said Mr. Lane, close of his address Mrs. Alex. Birmingham, England, told her copies of the gospel are being day in winning thousands to Korea.

Dr. Chapman to Ministers.

Several special plans were laid for the ministers of the city by Dr. Chapman in a little talk at 11 o'clock. Dr. Chapman believes we are to have a great victory in Fort Wayne, and that this victory is placed upon personal prayer and earnestness. It is easy personal work. Some of the best business men won from two to ten men a day during our campaign in Chicago, said Dr. Chapman.

Several reports came from the Wednesday evening services in the outside districts. At Trinity M. E. church Mr. Lowe's talk was upon the assurance of salvation and was directed chiefly to the church membership. His text was, "Is it well with thee?" PLANNING TO FLY OVER ATLANTIC FROM EUROPE TO AMERICA.

SHOWING PROPOSED COURSE ACROSS THE ATLANTIC.

A prize will be awarded to the yacht which first crosses the Atlantic. Preparations are now being made by Herr Joseph Brucker for an airship flight across the Atlantic. It is planned by Herr Brucker to have his airship Suchard ready for a trial trip about the middle of December. It will be mounted and filled in the Parseval balloon shed in Munich, and after trials will be shipped to St. Vincent, Cape Verde Island, where the start will be made late in February or early in March.

In connection with the expedition it is planned to hold an international yachting cruise, the yachts to start a day or two ahead of the airship, and which first crosses the Suchard's path. According to Herr Brucker the hurricane season will be over when he makes his start, and he does not expect to encounter any head winds, thunderstorms, fog or cyclones.

The balloon to be used will have two 100-horse power motors, which will drive two fifty-horse power propellers.

School Social Centers

(Philadelphia North American.) "Hurry up, kids; I see a light in the school house. You'd better beat it home and wash your face. I'm going to join the dance!" class tonight. There was a light in the school house—a cheery light that shone out with intensified splendor, because it was the only really bright spot in a dark neighborhood where even the street lamps seem to have a grudge against the people, and where a murky atmosphere of desolation prevails. The school house was undoubtedly the only inviting spot in the vicinity, and it was therefore the logical magnet towards which the children gravitated.

It was social center night. If you don't know what that is, your education in Americanism has been neglected, and you have yet to learn something about the institutions that are making future Philadelphians, who will one day say how the city will be governed, and who will govern it.

The public schools are no longer the centers of forced culture and compulsory education they were in your day. They are not just the stuffy places to which the children have to be driven to learn their tables, and to master the dictionary and the laws of syntax. They have another mission that takes so much of the teachers' time that it can't be gotten through with in the day, so the schools must be opened at night.

This mission is to teach the children how to have fun, how to get the most out of their surroundings, how to meet the daily need of childhood for exercise, recreation and spontaneous mirth, and above all, how to share their fun, how to socialize their mirth and how to build up for the future a practical philosophy of cheerful living.

Psychological Significance. Of course, the children don't know that there is so much psychological significance back of the simple opening of school at night and the invitation that is extended to them to come in off the streets and play. But their mothers have begun to feel that some rational influence is at work and their teachers realize that the time given to them at night is time saved in the day, and the youngsters themselves know that everything connected with the school is somehow less tiresome and less of a penance now than it used to be.

If you really want to know what the social center means to the child, you should visit the Wood school, or the Washington school, some night when everything is going at full blast and when children in one classroom are learning folk dances, while the little ones in another are playing dodgeball and in the third a group of would-be little housekeepers is busy in a miniature home, making beds, washing dishes and doing all the domestic things that are required of them in real life, only doing them with such zest because they are part of a good time, not part of the drudgery of life.

Both these schools are situated in colorless, dull sections of the city, where the streets offer nothing to the child but a constant reminder of its poverty and of the eordiness of its lot, and where the homes have little to counteract this sense of desolation. To have a bright, warm, cheerful place open; to feel that someone cares and is waiting to make them happy, and that the universe is not all as cold and forlorn as the street, means a whole lot to the children.

Children Are Guests. The teacher at the social center is left to her own devices in the matter of selecting the manner in which she will entertain her guests—for the children are her guests; they cease to be pupils when school lets out in the afternoon. And in every instance the inducements offered are those peculiarly adapted to the special class of children they are intended to attract.

For instance, the Wood school offers

WOULD NOT SIGN HEAD OF CHAMPS

Claude Varnell Did Not Want Wheeler to Manage His Team.

HAD FIRST CHANCE

Claude H. Varnell did something rather unique in baseball last fall when he turned down an opportunity to sign as manager the man who had beaten out the Fort Wayne team in the league and who had won the championship in the Central in a hard fight and had made some money for the club owners.

The natural inference would have been that Eddie Wheeler, at the close of the season of 1910, might have had any berth in the organization simply by asking for it, and showing that he was a true agent and ready to talk business.

It might have been expected that most team owners would have gone a step farther and have paid a reasonable sum for his release, but Claude H. Varnell could not see the proposition and he had first chance at Wheeler as a manager in 1911.

Along toward the close of the season of 1910 the friction that had existed between Bert Annis and Manager Wheeler reached an acute stage. McCarthy and Carnarius had been sold to Pittsburgh, a bruising fight with Fort Wayne had filled the coffers of the team with money, and the gate receipts and there was a nice little sum of money to be split.

At this stage Wheeler announced that under no conditions would he manage a team with which Annis was connected and indirectly went after the Fort Wayne berth. This was before the season closed and Mr. Varnell did not jump at the bait. He very coolly turned it down and went out in search of a man to fill Jimmy Burke's shoes.

He is still out on this mission and expects by the end of the present week to be able to announce his pilot for next season. He will take enough time to get pay for an acute stage. McCarthy and Carnarius had been sold to Pittsburgh, a bruising fight with Fort Wayne had filled the coffers of the team with money, and the gate receipts and there was a nice little sum of money to be split.

He never said just why he did not take it at Wheeler. He would have been asked to invest about $300 but he could not see it and he passed up an opportunity that several owners would have given a nice little pile of money for a shot at.

"If you saw 25 runs piled up in one afternoon, if you saw 44 base hits in one contest, do you think you would get your money's worth?" asks Sam Crandall.

"I took part in a contest in which all this happened. It was a grand gallery of hitting that along with Annis' floundering for pitch. Of all those who participated only two—Stefinoff and myself—remain in the major leagues."

Crandall, who was a pitcher, full of eye-ropes and so forth. I got four hits and there were five participants who struck for more bases than I did. I was out there with a big crowd that day—something like 17,000 people paying to get in. People were so thick in the outfield that you could not see the outfield. I don't think players hit the ball any harder then than they do now. It was just one of those slugging days. Run was about done at that time, but some of the other pitchers ought to have worked better than they did."

LOOK FOR A VICTORY.
The Junior Turner's basketball team will play the St. Mary's Athletics this evening at Turner's hall at 8:30 o'clock. The Juniors have organized a strong team and are confident of victory. The lineup for Juniors: Gale, left forward; R. Hickman, right forward; Bodecker, center; H. Hickman, right guard; Robert, left guard; Bodecker, substitute.

Compromise Offered On Balls

A few weeks ago a story appeared in various newspapers intimating that the rule of four balls giving a batter his base might be changed to three balls. This change was suggested with the object of making scoring more frequent and giving the batters a better chance with the pitchers, who are developing bewildering curves and delivery more rapidly than the hitters are advancing in the art of securing base hits.

Such a rule would be such a radical change from the present law that it would meet with mighty opposition, perhaps would not be considered at all. A compromise always is in order in such a case, and baseball men who have already gathered around the winter stage have suggested a compromise that might be adopted if the discussion of the change should ever come up before the rules committee.

By this compromise if there were no men on the bases the batter would be entitled to his base on three balls, but if a man should be on the bases ahead of him he would have to take four balls to reach the first sack on a walk. More scoring would result from this practice as the first man up would get on the first sack more frequently. The pitcher would be allowed his four balls with the man on base, however, and could waste a few, just as he does now, to catch the base runner if he attempted to steal.

Of course, the game would be harder for the base heads in the event of such a ruling being made, but the game would have a few more possibilities of inside ball. Think of the game that would be lost because "Home Head" Barry forced that he had to take four balls instead of three with a man on the bases. And think of the games that would be won in the same way. The game would be more uncertain than it is at present, and what the fans like up the quarters and halves for.

PRINTERS GET A JUMP IN SERIES

Land Three from Cooney

Five and Move Up

With the Leaders.

GOOD SCORES MADE

SCHEDULE TONIGHT: Weinant Lunch and Cadillac.

In the second league series the Fort Wayne Printing company five bowled up to form and gained three games on the leaders at the expense of the Cooney's Little Havanas. The winners had two dozins to their credit. The first game was won by Cooney's in the opening game and the second, which was the best of the evening's performance, went to Brookes. This gave him the best average.

From the losing five the Millers fought it out for the average and made a nice race but it was Miller pulled up with the high individual mark and sixteen more than his rival which landed him on top. The scores follow:

THE SHOP AND RAIL NEWS

DOEBLER IN HARNESS AGAIN

Old Mechanical Engineer Returns to Railroad Work.

MASTER MECHANIC OF C. & C. OF I.

Wabash Shops at Decatur Damaged by Fire—Shop News.

President George W. Stevens, of the Chesapeake and Ohio, has induced Charles H. Doebler to re-enter railroad work and this morning he assumed the duties of the office of master mechanic of the Chesapeake and Ohio company of Indiana, with headquarters at Peru. The C. & O. has in contemplation some important changes and improvements on the Indiana branch of the system and will spend over $1,000,000 on the line within the next year. The shops are to be enlarged and equipped with modern machinery and the working forces in them are to be enlarged also. In view of these contemplated improvements, President Stevens realizes the importance of an experienced man at the head of the department, hence the appointment of Mr. Doebler to the master mechanicship.

Charles H. Doebler is well known to the railway men in the east and middle states, for he has had dealings with them in various ways during his many years as a master mechanic and later as a representative of firms engaged in the manufacture of railway supplies. For the past year or two he has been connected with the Ruth, New & Company, of Buffalo, N. Y., who are engaged in steam specialty work and car supplies. Mr. Doebler resided in Fort Wayne a number of years, coming here soon after graduating from a polytechnic institute to take a position in the motive power department of the Pennsylvania. From this city he went to the Big Four and for three or four years was the master mechanic of the shops at Wabash. About fifteen years ago he was called to the office of master mechanic of the Eastern division of the Wabash, with headquarters in Fort Wayne, and two or three years later was transferred to the Middle division, with headquarters at Springfield, in a similar capacity. He resigned the latter position to embark in the manufacture and sale of car supplies, from which he retired yesterday to re-enter railroad work. Mr. Doebler was in the city for an hour yesterday.

AT THE HOSPITAL.

Four Pennsylvania Employees Meet With Misfortunes.

A. B. Crandall, a brakeman on the Pennsylvania railroad, was operated on for appendicitis at St. Joseph's hospital this morning. T. L. Waterman, a car repairer at the Pennsylvania shops, had the third and little fingers of his right hand badly cut by a piece of galvanized iron yesterday. E. H. Brown, employed on the Pennsylvania, had his nose broken by being struck by a switch engine while hanging on the side of a car Wednesday. S. E. Huston, a fireman on the Pennsylvania railroad, had his chest injured by falling into the manhole of a water tank Wednesday.

WABASH SUFFERS LOSS.

Part of the Shops at Decatur Destroyed by Fire.

The Wabash suffered a loss of $25,000 at Decatur, Ill., yesterday morning, when fire broke out in the shops and round house at that point. The machine shop at the round house, the washout house, the tool room and the general store room were entirely consumed. The destruction of these shops discommodates the mechanical department of the Decatur division, as much work formerly performed there will now have to be performed elsewhere.

FELL AND FRACTURED ARM.

Henry Wagner, of Bass Foundry, Victim of Accident.

Henry Wagner, employed in the cleaning department at the Bass foundry, had his right arm broken just above the elbow at noon yesterday, when he fell on Hanna street as he was going home to his dinner. He resides on Buchanan street, and after the fall he continued his way home, where the fractured bones were set by Dr. A. J. Kessler, the company's surgeon.

EIGHT HOURS A DAY.

Pennsylvania Shops Inaugurate New Working Schedule.

Bulletins were posted in the Pennsylvania shops this morning announcing that the men engaged in locomotive repair work would hereafter work only eight hours per day. How long this schedule will be maintained it will be known, but it is not believed it will be more than a few weeks at the most, as the winter months are generally the busiest of the year.

ARM BROKEN; WRIST DISLOCATED.

John T. Allen, a foreman in the passenger car department of the Pennsylvania shops, responded to a summons to hurry home at 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and he found his wife suffering from the result of a fall as she alighted from a street car on Walton avenue. One of the bones of her left forearm was broken near the wrist and the other bone was dislocated at the wrist, making a very bad wound. Dr. McHugh was called to attend her.

SPECIAL HAS TEN CARS.

The largest train in the history of the Pennsylvania Special, the eighteen-hour New York-Chicago flyer, passed through the city last night and this morning with ten cars. When this train was put into service, about four years ago, it was supposed that five cars was all that would ever be used in it. Gradually the train has been increased until double size of the original train, and it is still unable to carry all the people who apply for transportation on it.

NEW NAMES ON PAY ROLL.

The Pennsylvania shops took on some new employees this morning. In the boiler shop the following began work today: Benjamin J. Snyder, Clyde F. Marquette, John Rockenbaugh, Clair Conley, William Stewart and Oliver Krauss. Peter Vlasich, a passenger car builder; W. G. Adams and H. Blackford, machinists' helpers, also took positions in the shops.

INCREASED BOILER SHOP FORCE.

Foreman Martin Braun of the Bass boiler shop added several helpers to his list of workmen this morning. Among the new men are Clyde Merchland, John Garrison, Charles W. Fox and William Steibig, who went to work this morning. The boiler shop has plenty of work on hand at present, having only recently booked an order for six large water tube boilers.

ELECTRO-TECHNIC'S LECTURE.

"Tickets are out and being distributed for the third lecture in the winter's series of the Electro-Technic club. E. McPadden, the editor of Physical Culture, will be the speaker and his subject will be "Proper Physical Culture." This lecture will be given at the Elks' home Tuesday evening, December 13.

ANOTHER TRACK MONDAY.

The Wabash has its tracklayers at work today in putting down the second track on the concrete bridge over Calhoun street and next Monday trains will commence running over it. The third and last track will also be put in next week.

HIRED SOME MORE MEN.

A number of new names were added to the shop force list of the Wabash this morning, among them being John McKering, Harry Schondelmeyer, Robert Nibey, John Kausch, J. D. Crooke, C. H. Bradtmiller and E. France.

TO THE WOODS FOR RABBITS.

Lee Schae, C. Schlagle, E. Strick, R. Pressler, Carl Steig and Andrew Schmuck of the Pennsylvania shops went to Columbia City this morning to shoot rabbits.

INDUSTRIAL NOTES.

President Emil Delster of the Delster Construction company has returned from a business trip to Arizona.

Robert Ryan has been transferred from the Pennsylvania machine shop to the shop draughting department to do some special work. E. R. Gerber, who formerly filled that position, has returned to the shops.

M. S. Willson left this morning for Marquette, Mich., on business for the Fort Wayne Electric works.

The Wabash shops today turned out passenger engine 608, belonging to the Detroit division, which has been given general repairs.

P. F. W. Hambrick, F. A. Allen, A. C. Hoffman, L. G. Dunlifen and T. R. Mueller, Pennsylvania shopmen, are sick and off duty.

Machinist John O. Bryant of the Pennsylvania shops, was summoned home yesterday on account of the severe illness of his wife.

W. R. Hanes, L. S. Swartz and Napoleon Rosconi, of the Canadian branch of S. F. Bowser & Co., are in the city to consult the management on matters of business. Mr. Hanes is the manager of the Canadian branch.

Machinist Frank M. Hughes, who was sick two weeks, and Apprentice C. H. Mennewich, who ran a nail in one of his feet a month ago and has been unable to work since, reported for duty at the Pennsylvania machine shop this morning.

A business visitor in the city yesterday was W. R. Hoag, assistant general manager of the Post-American Forwarding company, of Chicago. Mr. Hoag makes monthly visits in this city and is pretty well known to the shippers and freight agents.

The revolution in Mexico has diverted winter travel from that country into another channel and the lines running to Florida points have been the beneficiaries. The travel to Florida is daily increasing, while there is a corresponding decrease in the travel over the lines leading to Mexico.

The 10,000 conductors, motormen and other employees of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company have been advised that their wages would be advanced 5 per cent. January 1. The raise includes elevated and grade line employees and it means an additional expenditure for wages of $300,000 annually.

AT THE MAJESTIC

CHICAGO SUCCESS COMES.

Harry Bulger in "The Flirting Princess" This Evening.

Harry Bulger in "The Flirting Princess," which comes to the Majestic tonight, ran the entire season in Chicago. It was produced by Mr. Singer in October last and during its Chicago engagement broke every attendance record that had been made in that city. Night after night and week after week the house was sold out. One by one the attractions which played at other theaters in opposition to it had to withdraw it until it and its sister attraction, "The Goddess of Liberty," became the pioneers of the season. "The Goddess of Liberty" at length went on the road, with the season's record of 325 performances. But even this has now been discounted by "The Flirting Princess," which left with a seven months' record of 240 performances. Mr. Singer is presenting Harry Bulger in the leading role this season and he is repeating the hit he made in Henry W. Savage's "Woodland" not long ago.

"THE CHORUS LADY."

Rose Stahl With Fine Company in Her Great Play Friday Night.

Rose Stahl comes to the Majestic Friday night in James Forbes' successful comedy, "The Chorus Lady," in which she has delighted audiences from coast to coast. Miss Stahl has scored many triumphs as Patricia O'Brien, queen of the chorus, and during the past season she presented the play for 100 nights in London and was received with the utmost enthusiasm, making the greatest hit ever achieved by an American star in England. It is scarcely necessary to retell the story of "The Chorus Lady," to Majestic playgoers, for it is so well known that it needs no introduction. The play deals with a chorus girl who in her amateur and hearing is like the magazine type of corymb, but who is at least a very wise and very good girl. Her attempt to shoulder the actions of a foolish younger sister for a time puts her in a very bad light with her friends and her sweetheart, but all difficulties are finally cleared away, leaving Patricia in the arms of her Dan. The remarkable second act dressing room scene is still the sensation of the piece as it reveals the chorus dressing room of a New York theater, with a score or more of girls preparing for the evening performance. Manager Henry R. Harris has retained most of the original cast with the play.

The love interest that is developed in the telling of the story is exceedingly strong.

WILL TEACH SACRED MUSIC TO CATHOLIC YOUNG MEN AND WOMEN.

New York, Dec. 1.—With the object of propagating sacred music and training Catholic young men and women to sing it, the Brooklyn Catholic Oratorio society has been organized under the patronage of prominent laymen and women of the borough, with the strong approval of Bishop McDonnell and other high dignitaries of the church.

The ultimate result of the movement may be the doing away with paid singers in Catholic church choirs, many of whom are not of that faith at present. There have always been choirs composed of young men and women in Catholic churches of the borough, but their training has been confined almost exclusively to the singing of hymns in chorus, and the church authorities have long desired a change. After several consultations had been held, several leading Catholic soloists and teachers formed an organization and the following officers were elected: President, Mr. Miles J. Driscoll; vice president, Anthony D. Uzorowicz; recording secretary, Miss Isabella M. Brown; financial secretary, Mr. John J. Neary; treasurer and librarian, Mrs. William O'Rourke.

Has 200 Members Already. Already the society numbers about 200 members, and rehearsals are held every Thursday evening at the assembly, No. 135 Pierpont street. This week sight reading classes will be formed. The officers of the society have established headquarters at No. 82 Lewis avenue, opposite St. John's college, and here applications are received for admission to the society.

"We have met with very gratifying results already," said Mrs. O'Rourke, "and we have no doubt that the society will in time become one of the largest and most important musical organizations in the borough. The field which it intends to cover is a very wide one. We hope in time to get every Catholic young man and woman who has a singing voice to join. Training is given absolutely free to members by the most competent teachers in the city. Prof. T. Rath Glasson is in direct charge of this work and he is giving much time and energy to making the society successful.

"We have already begun rehearsals for a big production of Mendelssohn's 'Hymn of Praise' at the Academy of Music on February 1. We intend to make this an occasion long to be remembered. There will be a chorus of 200 voices made up of members of the society, the majority of whom sing in church choirs. There will also be talented soloists from among the membership, and we may also have one or two professionals. Besides, there will be a large orchestra.

Bishop Greatly Interested. "Aside from this big affair that we are to hold we will give small entertainments from time to time to which friends of the members will be invited. Bishop McDonnell is taking a helping part in every way possible. Members of the choirs of many of the leading churches in Brooklyn are joining the society, and they find it greatly to their advantage.

"The training we give to members is not confined to sacred music, sung in Latin. Singing in English is also taught, but of course one of our main objects is to teach young men to be able to sing any of the masses written by the great composers.

"Our society has a charter membership of thirteen, and, strange to say, this number, thirteen, figures in nearly all of our doings. We do not regard it as a bad omen, however. On the contrary, we think it is a lucky number for us. We had our first meeting on the thirteenth and it was a very successful one. We are especially anxious to reach young men in order that they may be taught the Gregorian chant, which form of music in Catholic church choirs is particularly acceptable to the holy father. But all Catholic singers, whether men or women, will be heartily welcomed to membership.

The patrons and patronesses of the society, aside from the church dignitaries, include the following: Mrs. Hugh McLaughlin, Mrs. Anna M. Roche, Mrs. Thomas E. Murray, Mrs. James McMahon, Mr. M. F. McGoldrick, Mr. James R. Donnelly, Mrs. James A. Canfield, Mrs. Joseph Eppig, Mrs. M. Figuera, Mrs. T. Bath Glasson, Mrs. James C. Kennedy, Mrs. J. Richard Kevin, Mrs. M. F. McDermott, Miss Honor Quinn, Miss Helen Courtney, Miss Grace Strachan, Mrs. P. Turnett and Dr. A. A. Scouler.

Elephant's Favor the Hare's Undoing. Melancholy Fate of the Unsatisfied Turtle—The Peasant's Blunders—Ice-man Haled to Court Puzzles the Judge.

By M. QUAD.
(Copyright, 1910, by Associated Literary Press.)

ONE day a Hare, who was being pursued by a Fox, came upon the Elephant and paused to exclaim:

"Alas, if you do not extend your aid I shall be caught and devoured!" "So Reynard is after you, eh?" queried the Elephant. "Well, no one shall appeal to me in vain. As the Fox cannot climb trees, you will be eminently safe on a limb. Up you go."

With his trunk the Elephant carefully picked up the Hare and as carefully placed her on a bough twenty feet above his back, then started away with the feeling that he had done a good action and would some day be rewarded for it. As for the Hare, she called out that, having no claws to cling with, she must soon fall to the ground, but she was unheard, and down she fell just in time to be snapped up by the arriving Fox.

Sage, Lobster and Turtle.

As the Sage was taking his daily walk on the seashore a Lobster came out of the water and complacently said:

"O Sage, I am wretched and cast down and was thinking of suicide as you have in sight."

"Is it Wall Street?" asked the Sage. "Far worse, O wise man."

"Case of love, or hast thy wife eloped?"

"O Sage, it is that I am a Lobster! Behold me! See what an ungainly body! Notice my claws! People look at me and shrink aside and then exclaim in admiration at the sea gull. You will say that nothing can take the place of broiled lobster and lobster salad, but remember to furnish them I must be killed alive."

"And wouldst thou be a Gull?" "If it can be so it would delight me."

"Well, you can try it for awhile. Away you go."

As a Gull the Lobster found that he had even more enemies than before, and after a hunter had shot away his tailfeathers he asked that he might become a Turtle. The Sage winked at himself and ordered the change, but only a few hours had passed when the Turtle desired to be changed into a Shark. Being pursued by man and having only just escaped with his life, he begged to become a Whale.

"Anything to accommodate," answered the Sage, and the thing was done, but in plowing his way along the shore the big fish grounded and became the prey of some fishermen.

Moral.—The question is, isn't a contented lobster better off than a dead something else?

The Peasant and the Robber.

The Peasant was awakened at night by his wife, who told him that she heard the footsteps of an intruder. The man at once arose and opened the door and called a welcome.

"Thou hast money in the house?" cried the prowler.

"I hast."

"Give it to me at once or I will take it by force!"

"Thou needst not exert thyself. Here is the coin—the only one I possess. Take it and fare thee well. I wish it were for twice the amount."

The prowler pocketed the coin and disappeared into the night, and next moment the Peasant's wife rallied out:

"Moses Jones, you are the greatest fool in America!"

"Oh, I dunno," he replied.

"But I do. You invite a robber to come into the house and despoil us. Whoever heard of the like?"

"Peace, woman! I had but a single coin, and it was a counterfeit."

"Then you were a fool for getting stuck with it."

"Peace again! I found it on the highway."

"Then you were a fool for the third time for not trying to pass it. It might have bought me a pair of stockings."

"Once more, peace! There are other footsteps. It is an officer of the law coming to arrest me for having counterfeited money in my possession. I have none. He must be convinced of my innocence."

"But the coin could have been tossed out of the window," protested the faultfinding wife. "For the fourth time thou hast made a fool of thyself!"

Moral.—A man may be four times a fool and still be wiser than a sage in some things.

The Peasant and the Tree.

In going to and from market the Peasant passed a tree which was not only a thing of beauty, but in season it was always loaded with delicious fruit. So much was he interested that he finally went to the Nurseryman and bought one and set it out on his own land. When two or three years had passed a Wayfarer who came that way saw the Peasant cutting the tree down and exclaiming in indignation against the dishonesty of mankind.

"What hast made thee angry, and why hast cut down such a valuable tree?" was asked.

"I went to the Nurseryman to buy a crabapple tree, and he assured me on his honor that this was one. I have cared for it for several years only to find out that he swindled me."

"Why, man, it is a Bartlett pear tree!"

"And what of that?"

"Its fruit is ten times as valuable as the crabapple. Instead of his swindling you he was the loser by much. As it is now, you have neither crabapples nor pears, and neither can you make a shade tree of that you have cut down."

Moral.—It was the mule who kicked the blacksmith that fell on the icy road going home and broke a leg.

The Ice-man and the Judge.

A Citizen who was being supplied with twenty-five pounds of ice per day for a stated sum, but who found the weight short every day, had the delinquent brought into court and there stated his case. Not at all abashed, the Ice-man pleaded that it was all the fault of the sun. He started to bring in twenty-five pounds of ice all right, and if the sun melted five pounds in transit the loss could not be justly charged to him. The summer sun was something beyond his control.

"It does seem as if your excuse had reason behind it," replied the Judge, "but still it leaves the plaintiff paying for what he does not get. It is so many pounds of ice for so much money. If the sun melts your ice it is no more than right that it also shrivels up the money he is to pay."

"But, O Judge, how can money grow less because of the sun?" protested the defendant.

"That's so—that's so."

"And, O Judge," put in the plaintiff, "how could his ice melt if he delivered it only after the sun had set?"

Moral.—That and similar cases have arisen that the world may not be barren of food for philosophical thought.

Thin Men and Scrawny Women Can Gain a Pound of Good Solid Flesh Daily

Money Back in Any Case Where Samose Fails to Increase the Weight.

Weigh Yourself Before Using

Weigh yourself before commencing to use Samose, the great flesh-forming food. The wonderful sale on this preparation since first introduced in Fort Wayne and the remarkable results following its use have made Meyer Bros. Co. such enthusiastic believers in the great value of Samose that they give their personal guarantee to refund the money if Samose will not make thin people fat and restore strength and health to those who use it.

This is a strong guarantee, but they have seen so many of their customers who a few weeks ago looked like walking skeletons become plump and well, solely through the use of Samose that they feel they cannot say too much to induce people to try it.

This marvelous flesh-forming food is assimilated as soon as it is taken into the stomach, makes good rich blood, tones up the weakened system, helps to assimilate the food and makes the user plump, well and rosy.

How to Gain Healthy Flesh

Meyer Bros. Co. Advise Thin Folks to Use Samose.

While thinness may not be a disease, yet it is in reality a condition that needs attention. Under the nourishing power of Samose healthy, natural flesh will soon be attained.

This remarkable flesh-forming food strengthens the system generally and builds up the fleshy tissues so that good, natural plumpness results.

An ounce of flesh is better than a pound of theory. Meyer Bros. Co. believe that the best possible demonstration of the flesh-forming powers of Samose is to have it tried by their customers, and to induce them to use it, they offer to pay for the Samose in case it does not give satisfaction. No stronger proof than this can be given of their faith in it. They have seen hundreds who were weak, thin and scrawny become plump, robust and strong, solely through the use of Samose. Ten days' treatment 50c.

Thin Folks Made Fat.

Good healthy flesh can only be gained by the use of the proper food, together with natural action of the organs of assimilation. Nine people out of ten in order to weigh as much as they ought and be perfectly healthy, should use Samose, the great flesh-forming food and health restorer. Weigh yourself before commencing to take these little tablets, and see how your weight increases from week to week. Large box 50c.

Samose does not contain a particle of starch or pepsin, nor is it any nauseating preparation, such as is usually recommended to make people fat, and which does not build up good healthy tissues. Samose has valuable flesh-forming properties, tones up and strengthens the whole system, helps the food that is eaten to be assimilated in a natural manner and absolutely restores health to all the organs.

If you are not perfectly satisfied with the results from Samose, Meyer Bros. Co. will return your money without any quibbling.

FINDS NEW USE FOR THE BIBLE

Missouri Preacher Discovers Basis for Modern Farming Methods—Good Book Is Only Guide Farmers Need.

(St. Louis Globe-Democrat.)

There is a Missourian who has found a new use for the Bible. His name is Albert Stitt and until recently he has devoted his entire time to preaching the gospel to such sinners in Southern and Central Missouri as might fall under the influence of the Baptist church. He has the time of "evangelist" and his rough-and-ready wit, his earnestness and compelling oratory have made him famous throughout all the Ozark region. Not long ago he made a radical change in the style of his sermon. The "cost of living" had been echoed among the mountains and the poor showing of rural Missouri in the census of 1910 set him to thinking. "If religion is any good, it ought to help the farmer in his battle for life," he said. "I tell my people that the Bible is the only guide they need, and it's up to me to make good on this farming question."

So the Baptist evangelist set to work to "search the Scriptures" with a new purpose in view. Then he sent word to the immigration commission in St. Louis that he was prepared to do his part in the upbuilding of the state. Instead of preaching the doctrines of his sect in the hope of adding new members to the churches, he proposed that he make his circuit, preaching good farming to the men and women who were already within the fold. He went on to say that in all the libraries and all the files of farm journals there was not another text book on farming, horticulture and stock raising to be compared with the Bible. He would teach the intensely religious but pitifully ill-schooled Missouri farmer that it is his Christian duty to make the soil yield all it can. He had the Bible for authority and he could cite passages of Scripture showing what the Almighty considered the proper methods of farming, as they had been revealed to the chosen people.

He had heard the Ozark farmer ridicule the methods that are now being taught at the college of agriculture in Columbia, and he begins his sermon with the assertion, "There is nothing taught in that state school that doesn't go back to the Bible. Men may have had to discover it all over again and dig it out by hard experience, but it's all there, in black and white, ready for any one who wants to know. And it's been there all the time. The trouble with us Christians is that we don't make use of the wisdom that's all spread out in the Bible for us, free for the taking."

Danderine

GROWS HAIR and we can PROVE IT!

A lady from Minnesota writes: "As a result of using Danderine, my hair is close to five feet in length."

Beautiful Hair at Small Cost

HAIR troubles, like many other diseases, have been wrongly diagnosed and altogether misunderstood. The hair itself is not the thing to be treated, for the reason that it is simply a product of the scalp and wholly dependent upon its action. The scalp is the very soil in which the hair is produced, nurtured and grown, and it alone should receive the attention it is entitled to. It would do no earthly good to treat the stem of a plant with a view of making it grow and become more beautiful, if the soil in which the plant grows must be attended to. Therefore, the scalp in which the hair grows must receive the attention if you are to expect it to grow and become more beautiful.

Loss of hair is caused by the scalp drying up, or losing its supply of moisture or nutriment, when baldness occurs the scalp is simply lost all its nourishment, leaving nothing for the hair to feed upon (a plant or even a tree would die under similar conditions).

The natural thing to do in either case, is to feed and replenish the soil or scalp as the case may be, and your crop will grow and multiply as nature intended it should.

Knowledge of Danderine has a most wonderful effect upon the hair glands and tissues of the scalp. It is the only remedy for the hair ever discovered that is similar to the natural hair foods or liquids of the scalp.

It penetrates the pores quickly and the hair soon shows the effects of its wonderfully exhilarating and life-producing qualities.

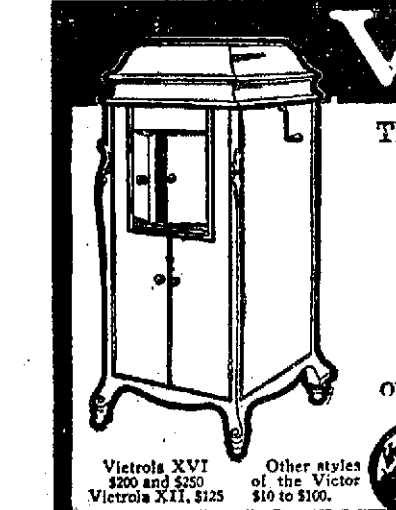

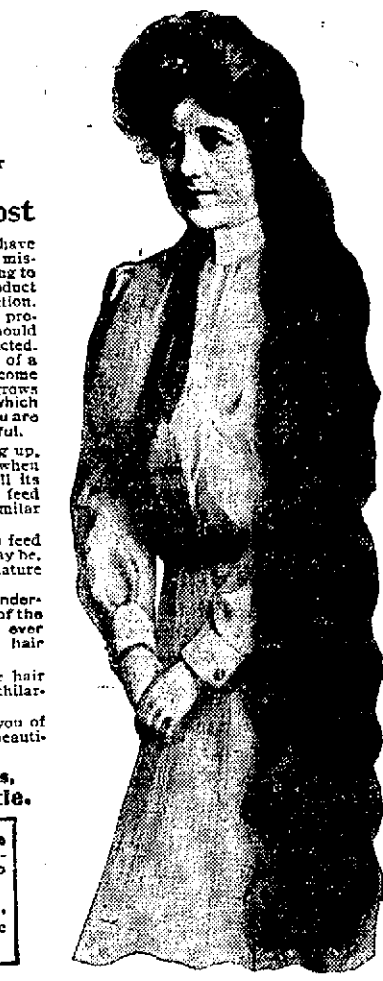

One 25-cent bottle is enough to convince you of its great worth as a hair growing and hair beautifying remedy—try it and see for yourself.

NOW at all druggists in three sizes, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

ner, at least a dozen times, in the Bible.

Answered a Challenge.
Mr. Stitt was once challenged by a stubborn old farmer, who demanded concise Biblical authority for "this here new-fangled idea of plowin' and fertilizin' fruit trees." He was tolerably sure that the preacher could not put his finger on the spot. However, the preacher was "there with the goods." He opened his Bible to the thirteenth chapter of Luke and read the parable of the fig tree, which for three years had borne no fruit, and the master of the orchard said, "Cut it down; why cumbereth it the ground?" And the dresser of the orchard said, "Lord, let it alone this year also, till I shall dig about it and dung it. And if it bear fruit, well; and if not, then after that thou shalt cut it down." The farmer was convinced.

There are many little details of proper farming methods which the evangelist finds in the Bible, such as "He that putteth his hand to the plow, and looketh back is not fit for the kingdom." The man who would plow properly must look ahead, so that his furrow will not be crooked. Crooked furrows make irregular fields that cannot be successfully cultivated and freed from weeds.

He ends his sermon with the prophecy in Revelations of a tree growing beside the river of life, which shall bear twelve manner of fruit.

"The science of fruit grafting," he says, "has not yet been developed to this degree, but at our fruit experiment stations we have seen one tree bearing four distinct kinds of fruit, and we cannot doubt that the righteous man is doing the noblest kind of work and work that is most pleasing to his Maker, when he gives his hand and brain to the soil, remembering to dig, prune, purge and fertilize the orchard and to dress and keep the garden."

THE BEST MAN.

An Irishman obtained permission from his employer to attend a wedding.

He turned up the next day with his arm in a sling and a black eye.

"What's the matter?" said his employer.

"Well, you see," said the wedding guest, "we were very merry yesterday and I saw a fellow strutting about with a swallow-tailed coat and a white waistcoat. 'And who might you be?' said I. 'I'm the best man,' sez he, and, begorra, he was, too."—Harvey's Irish Life of Humor.

Boy Who Lost His Legs Wins Admiration of His Associates in School.

New York, Nov. 28.—Fourteen-year-old Faust Rupp, who lost his legs four years ago when he was run over by a railroad train in Montreal, Canada, has won the admiration of his associates at public school No. 70, Macon street and Patchen avenue, Brooklyn.

Recently Instructor Callahan, of the science department, offered a prize for the best model of an aeroplane constructed by a scholar. Young Rupp lost no time in getting started, and has completed the models of three aeroplanes and is now at work on a monoplane.

The youngster was found at work in his shop, the kitchen of his home, No. 274 Chauncey street, by a reporter. He was sitting tailor fashion on a table, busy on the motor of the monoplane. When he saw the stranger he became much excited, because, as he explained later, "you can't tell who is spying around." Before he would answer any questions he had a few to be answered, such as, "Have you seen any of the other fellows' models?" "How are they?" "Have they got me beat?" But when he was told he looked like a winner he became cheerful and was willing to talk about his "tips."

"The first one was my first," he said, holding up a model of an alrship that would do credit to any of the professionals, "and it is the one I expect to win the prize for, but if I think I will enter it in the contest." This model was constructed on a frame of bamboo, the planes covered with silk and operated by a clockwork motor.

When he was asked where he got the ideas for his work he said that after he met with the accident he was practically confined to the house and had to find something to relieve the monotony of the slow, dragging hours. He first tried his hand at wireless telegraphy, but soon abandoned it for the more popular aerial navigation. Something seemed to tell him he would make a success of it. He added:

"Gee! I hope I win the prize, and if I do I am going to give the money to my mother. I don't forget the trouble she had with me, and, say, when I become a real aviator I am going to build a nice little plane for 'Mam', and the both of us will be able to travel around together."

LEISURE IN LUXURY'S LAP.

In a Way It's a Busy Life, But One Does Take on Weight.

(William Hard's "The Wasters," in December Everybody's.)

"You see a little crowd of women come into the Mandarin tea room of the St. DuBarry in Novellopolis in the fresh west. When they remove their automobile veils you see that they were once, and very recently, the nicest sort of members of the sewing circle and the W. C. T. U. of Lone Tree Crossing.

When the waiter comes along with their cocktails and they begin to sip them out of their teacups, you wake up with a jerk to realize that it's 8:30 in the afternoon and the evening has begun.

How rapid it all is! There's Margaret Simpson. A few years ago you might have seen her pumping the water for Jim's breakfast, cleaning the lamps and picking bugs off the potato vines.

Jim came to town. He struck it poor. Then he struck it rich. He owns a bunch of moving picture places. He manufactures a patented bottle stopper. He's a pavement contractor. His wife has just as much leisure as any duchess.

The duchess has her individual estate and resources, which make it possible for her to lead an almost complete social life within her own walls. But never mind! Margaret has the downtown district, co-operatively owned, co-operatively maintained, magnificently equipped with bright boudoirs in the rest rooms of the department stores, with wonderful conservatories where one may enter and gaze and pay no more attention to the florist than to one's own gardener, with sumptuous drawing rooms, like the purple parlor of the St. DuBarry, with body servants in the beauty shops, with coachmen on the taxicabs, with seclusion in the ladies' department of the Novellopolis Athletic club—an infinitely resourceful estate, which Margaret knows as intimately as the duchess knows hers.

This morning she hunted down a new reduction plant on the eighteenth floor of the Beauty block and weighed in at 185 on the white enamel scales, and after an hour of Thermo-Vibro-Magnets Edison company light-therapy weighed out at 182.8.

At luncheon she ate only puree of tomatoes, creamed chicken and sweetbreads, Boston brown bread and butter, orange punch and Lady Baltimore cake, severely cutting out the potatoes.

After luncheon she spent an hour in a tiny room which had mirrors all around it and a maid (as trim and French accented as any maid any duchess could have) and a couple of flirts and a head flitter. It ended up with: "Do you mean to tell me that after all the reducing and dieting I've been doing I can't wear under a twenty-seven? It's ridiculous. I tell you what. Measure me for a made

WANTS HIS OLD COMRADES TO READ THIS.

S. C. Murphy, Fort Wayne, Ind., a veteran of the civil war, desires his old comrades to know the contents of this letter.

"For three or four years I have suffered from kidney trouble. My back ached severely and I had to get up frequently at night and was very dizzy upon arising in the morning. The black spots before my eyes made me imagine they were flies. I was recommended to try Foley Kidney Pills and the results were immediate. The pain left my back, I had no more dizziness, my kidney action was normal and I attribute my cure to the sole use of Foley Kidney Pills." Dreier Bros.

REFUGE FOR SICK AMERICANS IN GAYETY'S CAPITAL.

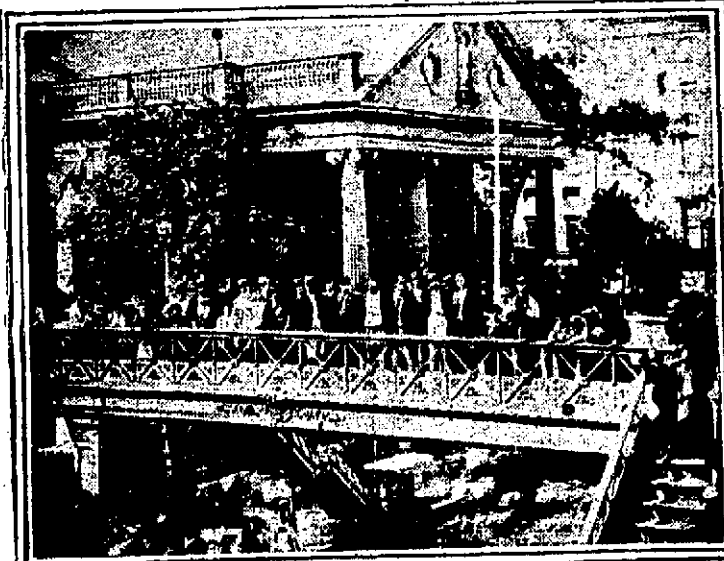

AMERICAN HOSPITAL IN PARIS

Paris, Dec. 1.—One year after its official opening, and six months after its first admission of patients, the American hospital of Paris has won no little renown as the best equipped hospital in the city, and, considering its size, and purpose, it is unexcelled by any hospital in the world. Many things are still required to carry out the plans of its founders, and especially is there need of money to complete the permanent endowment of the institution, but its work is well started, and its founders are convinced that its existence is fully justified by the number of persons who have sought treatment there.

A LITTLE BIT OF OLD NEW YORK.

REMARKABLE RECENTLY-RECOVERED PHOTOGRAPH OF OLD-TIME BRIDGE OVER BROADWAY AT ST. PAUL'S CHAPEL.

Herewith is printed a ferrotype photograph of a little bit of old New York. It shows an old footbridge over Broadway at Fulton street. The picture was taken in 1867 and has just been recovered from a pile of rubbish which found its way into the establishment of a junk dealer. The bridge was built so that the danger to life in crossing Broadway at Fulton street in those days might be minimized. The structure was put up in 1866, when there was enormous foot traffic at Broadway and Fulton street, the latter at that time being the principal crostown street of the city. Brooklyn bridge had not been built, and the Brooklyn crowds then went back and forth by the Fulton ferry.

CHRIST'S LAW WAS TOLSTOY'S.

Non-resistance to Evil Literally Accepted by Russian Philosopher.

(Tolstoy's "My Religion.")

"It has been said unto you, an eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth; but I say unto you, that you resist not evil or the evil man."

Whatever injury the evil disposed may inflict upon you, bear it; give all that you have, but resist not evil or the evil one. Could anything be more clear, more definite, more intelligible than that? I had only to grasp the simple and exact meaning of those words, just as they were spoken, when the whole teaching of Christ, not only as set forth in the Sermon on the Mount, but in the entire Gospels, became clear to me; what had seemed contradictory was now in harmony; above all, what had seemed superfluous was now indispensable. Each portion fell into harmonious unison and filled its proper part, like the fragments of a broken statue when put together as they should be.

In the Sermon on the Mount, as well as in all other places, Christ presents himself to his disciples—in other words, to those that observe the rule of non-resistance to evil—as turning the other cheek, giving up their cloaks, persecuted, used despitely and in want. Elsewhere, many times Christ says that he who does not take up his cross, who does not renounce worldly advantage, he who is not ready to bear all the consequences of the commandment, "Resist not evil," cannot become his disciple.

He himself was ready to bear suffering and death rather than resist evil, and he reproved Peter for wishing to avenge him, and he died for his following his followers to resist, nor did he make any modification in his doctrine. All his early disciples observed this rule, and passed their lives in poverty and persecution and never rendered evil for evil.

Christ must have meant what he said. We may declare the universal practice of such a rule is very difficult; we may deny that he who follows it will find happiness; we may say with unbelievers that it is stupid, that Christ was a dreamer, an idealist who propounded impracticable maxims which his disciples followed out of sheer stupidity; but it is impossible not to admit that Christ expressed in a manner at once clear and precise what he wished to say—that is, that according to his doctrine a man must not resist evil, and consequently, that whoever adopts his doctrine cannot resist evil. And yet, neither believers nor unbelievers will admit this simple and clear interpretation of Christ's words.

Prompt assistance smothered the blaze, but not before the hair was burned off and the left side of her head badly burned.
